

HER BREATHING NEXT TO ME

a poetry EP

by Nicky T

XOXO

From the big bang to drug's slang

The theory of relativity is impressive but relatively useless

If we only explain what we can never change

Love does not stand tall like a tree To be cut down in a rainforest of beauty-Count its rings of age Its vulnerable innocence and stand still experience Growing-
Then becoming:
Slaughtered!
and lost!
at the hands of the guilty To be cut down and turned into dead wood Burned alive in the fire Places (of our desire) Pluming into the sky from this red fury funneled up a chimney Blue and black ash, clouds, smoke and clarity to cover up the sun So our eyes can look up

NO.

Love grows subtly, ugly from below
Like moss taking over a slippery stone Allowing us to walk over it safely into the unknown
The same deep shade as the fragile green strength of your eyes The moss I grip and peer through to see into your mind That covers my heart like a stone to be thrown How many skips it will get I do not know BUT
I know even if your love leaves it wont It sinks, but not down Because down is just up upside down And who decides which to be considered turned around?
It floats to the deepest depths of the ocean and with every tidal wave above it leaves a gentle current underneath where our hearts like these stones will roll in every direction leaving fragmented traces beyond comprehension of a yes or a no to a place where there is no truth

and that's why you lie
and its this backwards constant honesty that makes your lips taste good
and I yearn to enjoy.
There is no reason for the things you do
And that is the reason that I love you.

Excuse me miss Allow me to not repeat myself because I wish to be misunderstood clearly, To open myself up to everything letting it in or out Whether or not I hold it dearly Thoughts hit me as I drive in a direction labeled forward By all the signs telling me when to stop, go and turn

On a pre-set path
A concrete destiny
On command
On a full mind on an empty tank of gas Where I pass by fake trees Indifferently planted over devastated lands Where I'm not weak alone But feel stronger when you hold my hand Instead I'm sucking on a cigarette, the only thing I can grip Observing people's realities revolve in a circle (rather than unfold unevenly, Wild in it's complexity!
like a drunk drawn line, a map of our life that penetrates beyond direction and time) With a life based around making bank It's only their eyes they thank for what they see Thinking the army is the only place to be all you can be Instead I thank my fingers, my chemical control of bones and muscles to express what I cannot with thoughts alone but they still fall short of the way I fall off this round earth. this is my script unrehearsed, ME! at my worst with every feeling and reaction to actions being my first so raw and exposed that every touch feels good while it hurts.

If my love were a play there would be no lines to assemble this, the way your eyes take me apart and realize every end is a start so the best I can do is write in so many words with importance being on the spaces in-between the lines to be filled in with truths if my love were a play it would be impossible to act the script would simply say this:

opening act: stage direction:

look her in the eyes, step on her foot and give her a kiss let the curtains close and the real beauty exist

Actions speak louder than words But actions are words acted out (you heard?)

It's a matter of which came first I haven't figured it out but give me one more verse

The mind is like a blank slate we still need to erase Wipe away the waste chalked up by

Seven jeans	on your marks
50 mg antidepressants	3
Two for one cigarettes	2
Three dollars a gallon	1
And 6 billion served	go!

I, unnerved

Count every star in the sky but why?
It never ends so how could it begin?
It's before the Big Bang and Adam and Eve chose to sin

I, disturbed

spelunk myself navigating with a flashlight on my hands and knees crawling through stalactites and stalagmites of truth and lies hanging in the caverns of my mind with water dripping off their tips I often confuse which is which.

there's truth in every lie and no sense in time, it lingers but won't stay longer than this line. no way to rewind the childhood we record on video home made tapes stacked up like it's gonna work

I, unwavering as the American flag on the windless Moon

Use words, my scissors to clip free humanity It's a bird's beak caught in a six pack case of apathy.
It's a let loose kite captured in power lines of possibility.
It's an escaped&enraged silver back guerrilla that's been tranquilized; Sedated muscles,

but dreams still alive!
(If dreams are alive are we dead right now?)

I, defibrillate the heart beneath the rib cage of regret and the weight of disparity

I'll be the first to admit I haven't been through shit I've been fucked over but haven't even fucked yet But if sex is a connection then I've made love to minds With different histories but similar sentiments I find
I've penetrated deeper than a porn star's organ Broken the brain's hymen, Let the blood trickle down its ripples

Let kisses be the bees Transferring the pollen of our hearts from mouth to mouth Weak in the knees,
As a starving hummingbird I feed off this nectar No one can blossom without a little help

Ain't it funny how no bomb dropped No love exclaimed from a mountain top Everything else is nothing compared to what I found From you simply sleeping next to me The profound feeling of your breathing so calm against the side of my cheek, steadily inhaling and exhaling every part of me.
Fog my face like glass your fingers could write on but there's nothing to exclaim when the silence explains all

I'm in awe at the gentle power one can give off The fusion of love shared splits my atoms in two giving off a nuclear explosion I hold in then my diaphragm resumes the same up down motion as you. my radiating soul gets consumed, swallowed whole (accepted, not chewed) with one breath against my cheek there's no need to ever move.
Laying motionless except your fingers as they carefully curl around a precious thought I dare not disturb.

my eyes sneak glances at the ways yours are shut your lids keeping out the sun but still letting light in my heart tingles and I know I will savor this moment forever.

with every thought, the idea of you gets sweeter.

I didn't know angels had respiratory systems and spoke casually.

It seems they like to dance while picking out clothes to wear It seems they like to shower but always have a fragrant aroma in their hair.
No need for wings, she flies rising on currents of love unseen

Letting it rub off on others, I see Those wounded doves sinking hopelessly With clipped wings and broken hearts deceived by infomercials introverted and turned into fossils, decayed in the earth resurrected from tar pits of hope we preserve and exhibit everything that hurts but you've got to experience your spirit before it can inhibit you following one another like a caravan behind a funeral hearse 20/20 vision and still blind to discern there's too many inaccurate facts memorized in school to learn a history shaped to fit the culture girl's starve themselves to uphold take it as a compost pile from where actual actualization springs.

the plumber called:

God's toilet is clogged with more bile than our lower intestines, unraveled to the length of half a mile.

give it a flush, watch the counter clockwise swirl of reclaimed water go down with a smile.

I start the search for myself now because it's gonna take awhile Live life like we're dead and this is our afterlife:

Free to be our own gods and mortals Build our heaven like architects with degrees in hiding ourselves behind walls tall enough to keep out those who want in but now we're trapped inside too so be brave enough to break them down and Find ways to praise and bless one another Hold each other up without letting ourselves fall Fill the churches with those who believe in the driving forces of everything we can't see (invisible and infinite)

I believe too,
I believe in the soft power of the wind through which we blow, Where my memories get carried faster than me into the future Glide along with only one constant known that we live life on a downhill slope, picking up speed while simultaneously trying to slow it down

Driven by fear of hitting bottom and hoping we don't go to Hell

I believe in the force of gravity and ourselves to hold us back like physical and mental oppressors until you jump high enough to hang on to the solid clouds see the ground below as the hazy, shape changing entity from where we rain like six billion drops that can't be stopped, sorry cops but that's twelve billion eyes to mace so bust out the road blocks!

I don't believe in fear enough to believe in One definitive God

To live life based around a book accepted without asking questions

while the concept of religion's foundation is a matter of faith

you can't prove with a declarative statement.

Live life like we're dead and this is our afterlife:
Our sleeping dreams being the real And our waking world now being the crazy fairytale Told by one coked out story teller Yelling the tale as he goes turns it into a tragic comedy Frantically; where we pit humans against each other in bloody battles using illogical logic, blending the once separate colors of freedom and expansion, (please note that's expansion of empires not minds) a gray pattern evolved from fast repeating black and white opinions.
Man vs. Man because we already killed God, paved over nature, and lost ourselves in the process of going forward in reverse making history the same mistakes only progressively worse till mushroom clouds scream "we've had enough, you've had your chance" weather forecast predicts this weekend will be:

partly cloudy with a nuclear winter so if you commute please bring an umbrella and a haz-mat suit

Our end filmed as a pay per view event: covered nightly for a week on the news till the ratings drop at the same rate of humanity Every reporter commentating on air, with a stapled smile and too much make up.
styled hair that doesn't matter when the fake tits get all the attention they beg for.

Flip to the end of this fucked up fiction, started by one wrong beginning that snowballed into a species able to anticipate its own demise making it a self fulfilling prophecy if we keep swallowing our own lies.

let the shit and disgust stew in your stomach till it!

comes up and out your throat leaving behind the rank acidic taste of despise pop antacids and bad acid tablets to suppress the surprise then spill it!

splatter the sidewalk with the chunks of digested ugliness and see the beauty in letting out the wrong you held in, turning it inside out into something new you're about to begin

The earth filed for rape, claimed we courted her romantically for a century then made her kneel and suck our dicks after we took ecstasy.

What's the verdict?
It got sent to the 11th circuit court of appeals.
